

DIALOGUE AT A GLANCE

- Tags at the end:

“ _____,” said Rose.

“ _____?” asked Rose.

“ _____!” exclaimed Rose.

- Tags at the beginning:

Iris said, “ _____.”

Iris asked, “ _____?”

Iris exclaimed, “ _____!”

- Interrupting Tags between two sentences of a quotation:

“ _____,” said Lily. “ _____.”

“ _____?” asked Lily. “ _____?”

“ _____!” exclaimed Lily. “ _____!”

- Interrupting Tags interrupting a one-sentence quotation:

“ _____,” said Daisy, “ _____.”

“ _____,” asked Daisy, “ _____?”

“ _____,” exclaimed Daisy, “ _____!”

Enclose in Quotation Marks	Italicize
name of a short story or chapter of a book	title of a novel
name of a TV program	name of a movie
title of a poem	title of a collection of poetry or an epic poem
headline of an article or title of a report	name of a magazine or newspaper
title of a song	title of a musical or long musical composition name of a ship, plane, train, etc.

QUOTATION MARKS

Name: _____

CONTROLLING QUOTATION MARKS

Use what you have learned about quotation marks and endmarks to correct the following sentences. Some may not need changing.

1. Do you ever watch Cupcake Wars on The Food Network? asked Steven.
2. Which one of you called me a cowardly excuse for a soldier? barked the sergeant.
3. After reading To Kill a Mockingbird, I rented the movie because I did not understand it at all.
4. An extra five minutes at lunch was our prize. I was so excited I nearly peed.
5. All the teenagers at the party were duded out from saying the cliché phrase so much.
6. If you want to know why I'm so bitter, read my article Rosy Glasses in the latest copy of our newsletter, The Tower.
7. I wish that old fussbudget—Melanie stopped abruptly as Binder walked into the room.
8. Do you call everyone by the name Cupcake asked Katie.
9. The investigator asked us where we had spent the evening.
10. Don't make outrageous excuses my attorney advised that will only make matters worse.
11. Ebenezer said I told you the representative said No way before I ever had a chance to explain.
12. Why are you still here my supervisor asked everyone else went home three hours ago.
13. We were shocked by our holiday bonus a bag with a cookie and an orange.
14. Looking at her tardy record, I see why you've named her Punctual Paula.
15. Get out of the way yelled the captain.